

Translations Directories

Helping you find health and legal information in your own language

Translations Directories

The Translations Directories are Victorian Government websites that assist you to find health and legal information in your own language.

Quality-assured information

The Translations Directories provide links to quality-assured information that is up to date, professionally translated and produced by:

- Government departments
- Peak health bodies
- Hospitals
- Community health centres
- Welfare organisations
- Centrelink
- Consumer Affairs
- Victorian courts

For health information go to:
www.healthtranslations.vic.gov.au

For legal information go to:
www.justice.vic.gov.au/translations

Find the information you need

The Translations Directories give you access to more than 10,000 resources in over 50 information categories and 65 languages.

All resources are also available in English.

www.healthtranslations.vic.gov.au

Some of the categories you can find on Health Translations include:

- Aged care
- Children's health
- Grief and loss
- Settlement information

www.justice.vic.gov.au/translations

Some of the categories you can find on Justice Translations include:

- Consumer rights
- Crime prevention
- Fire and water safety
- Legal rights and information

Share the information with your doctor or legal worker

The Translations Directories link to information developed for Victoria's culturally and linguistically diverse communities. However, as some of this information relates to important health and legal issues, we recommend that you discuss any information you find with your doctor or legal worker.

Share the information with your family

You can find information relating to all ages and needs, so share the knowledge with your family and friends.

Easy access to information

Whether from home, your local community centre or library, all you need to use the directories is access to the Internet.

Searching made easy

For links to all the relevant information, just enter the topic you are looking for and select your preferred language.

You can also use the advanced search function to narrow your search.

The website is in English so you may need the assistance of a family member or friend.

Free access and use

The Translations Directories are funded by the State Government of Victoria and are free to use. You don't need to be a member or provide any personal details to access, print or save the resources that you need.

www.healthtranslations.vic.gov.au

The Health Translations Directory is an initiative of the Better Health Channel (www.betterhealth.vic.gov.au), Department of Human Services, Victoria. For more information, please visit the Health Translations Directory website or call 9616 2667.

www.justice.vic.gov.au/translations

Justice Translations is an initiative of the Diversity Issues Unit, Department of Justice, Victoria. For more information, please visit the Justice Translations website or call 8662 1725.

The Translations Directories were developed with funding from the Victorian Office of Multicultural Affairs.

www.voma.vic.gov.au